

Hello again!

I don't know about you, but I find one of the weirdest things about lockdown is not being able to go anywhere. We're so used to going places, it feels weird to spend so much time, well, not going anywhere!

What journey would you like to make as soon as lockdown is lifted?
Where would you like to go first?

Today's 'Up Close and Personal' incident took place on a journey from Jerusalem out to a village called Emmaus on the first Easter Sunday afternoon. The two disciples on the road are talking about everything that has happened over the past few days: Jesus' arrest, crucifixion and – could it possibly be true? – the fact that some of the other disciples had seen Jesus alive again! Jesus himself starts to walk alongside them, but they don't recognise him... It's a brilliant story and you can read it for yourself in Luke 24, starting at verse 13;

Obviously nobody is going anywhere at the moment...! But the idea of a journey can be a word-picture for the changes we all go through in our lives.

- Can you think of any things which are changing for you at the moment?
- How are you feeling about those changes? Excited? Worried? Something else...?

The point of this story is that God wants to go with us the whole way!

Maybe spend some time talking with God about the things which are changing for you now – tell him about your hopes, feelings, concerns, questions...

What difference could it make that God goes with you and before you??

As always, we would love to hear your thoughts or questions by email, text or on GeckoLife!

Anybody got a favourite worship song? Let me know what it is, and I'll post it next time!

Keep well!
